Shaneen Bonner is a Two-Time Grammy Considered, Award-Winning, Billboard Charting Music Artist, Author, and Record Label Executive who built a successful career in the music industry for over 10 years, first as a music artist and later as a record label executive. Her love for music came from the church and was developed by multicultural experiences. Her soulful music is filled with positive lyrics and life-changing messages that captivated her listeners' hearts.

Shaneen is an active member of Christian Songwriters and Musicians International, Women Songwriters Hall of Fame, and many others. She has been featured in several newspapers and magazines. She uses her activism to help the homeless community, and empower teenage mothers by connecting them to a supportive community of other teen mothers & adult mentors, and women affected by domestic violence.

Shaneen is also an author who has written her first book called "Bleeding Within A Journey To Finding Healing." The book helps people deal with inner issues that have been caused by trauma. The book helps a person to identify the issues caused by pain, disappointment and hurt that has occurred in their life.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I took on the role of music artist, activist, author, and executive to create financial freedom. Growing up, I was always musically inclined and listened to all genres of music. Music from artists like Michael Jackson, Michael Bolton, and many others. At the age of 8, I listened to Minnie Riperton sing the song "Back Down Memory Lane." During junior high and high school, I auditioned for several talent shows as well as singing in church choirs. This all inspired me to create and write my first album "God Loves You." What led me to this particular career is my love of music.

Our second release "Praise" received a Spotify plaque and streamed over 363,000 units and received its second Grammy consideration. The record label is designed to develop new artists by teaching them the ends and outs of the music industry. In addition, Decree Records offers artist development, music consulting, and music submission services.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The greatest highlight of my career has been defying the odds by taking risks when I was told I couldn't do what I'm doing as a woman. Despite what people said, I did it anyway.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

My success is a tribute to my three daughters who are my greatest supporters.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

The message I hope women take away would be to believe in themselves and trust the process.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

Tough times will pass, but strength will stand for a lifetime.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

A woman making Herstory means that we can pave our own path and create the destiny that we were designed to accomplish.

In addition to your music career, you're also an author. Please tell us more about your book "Bleeding Within A Journey To Finding Healing" and what readers can expect.

My book "Bleeding Within A Journey To Finding Healing" helps people deal with inner issues that have been caused by trauma, incidents, and or accidents. Also, it helps a person to identify the issues caused by pain, disappointment, and hurt that has occurred in their life. "Bleeding Within A Journey To Finding Healing" is available at www.shaneencbonner.com.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I started my entrepreneurial journey in 1998. My inspiration came from being tasked with creating an event for a church I attended. It was my first one and I realized I had a gift of bringing a vision into reality. After that first event, I had many people come to me about curating events for them which also led to managing independent music artists.

There was something about being challenged to do something where it really pulled the greatness out of me. I had always thought about starting a business in my early 20s, but never made the decision to go all in until that request.

Being inspired to leap into something new was one of the greatest jumps I've made.

That was the starting point that inspired me to be an entrepreneur. The joy of having something I could establish as a legacy builder for my daughter kept me inspired and 20 years later, I am still holding true to my goal.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

I have seen many highlights within my career, but nothing compares to my current ventures. I pivoted my business a little because of the 2020 pandemic. COVID-19 caused some challenges for my business which I was able to navigate through with perseverance. With the shift, I established a personal brand to lead my business.

Honestly, the highlight is about showing up for myself and not shrinking back. I have successfully established an ecosystem between my business and personal brand.

I am a business strategist, international speaker, and CEO of SWI Management Group. I have traveled internationally to speak in Paris, France, and planning an event in the Dominican Republic. I've authored 2 books, included in an anthology, founded the According to 2 Sacha podcast, and so much more.

Most importantly, I love empowering all entrepreneurs, especially women, about managing mental wellness as an entrepreneur. I am an entrepreneur who had experience with mental health and entrepreneurship during the pandemic. I now choose to be transparent about that journey and what I practice to maintain a healthy peace of mind.

I'm excited about where my business is currently taking me.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

Oh wow, I have a long list of people. There have been many who have supported me on this journey. Even when I wanted to do things my way, they were there for me. I'm thankful for those who have been placed in my life.

My family loved ones, friends and strategic partners have contributed to my success. In business, you are always evolving and I know the next level of success is coming soon. For each level is a new success point and more people will be added to the list.

I'm also grateful for the pandemic, if it wasn't for it happening, I would probably be at the same point in my life living "safely" in my comfort zone.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

I want women to be empowered, to be the superpower they are. That they can be strategic and have the businesses of their dreams without having to niche down.

To walk away empowered to manage mental well-being and their businesses without feeling burnout. I want them to effectively learn how to create thriving ecosystems with their brand and company with multiple streams of income. It's about understanding that the Blueprint of Success Begins with You and only you have the power to engage it.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

My go-to quote is my own. "Trust Your Dopeness," which reminds me to be great even during the moments I don't feel like it. I have to keep going and walk in the greatness that shines through my life. Being a public figure, I know many are watching me. I have a greater responsibility now, I have to "Trust My Dopeness!"

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

The power of a woman when she grasps onto her superpower is an unstoppable force. Women making Herstory means she is a disruptor and a trailblazer. She has gone against the odds to become who she is.

There's a story in every woman and the driven passion that flows from her heart impacts the world. I am that woman who is making Herstory for entrepreneurs to have sustainable businesses, for women to manage their business while maintaining self-care, and for my daughter to continue to understand that the world is hers to ignite.

Michelle Agopsowicz has a Master's in Social Work, a Bachelor's in Disability Studies, and a Reiki Master. Michelle offers counseling and education opportunities from a holistic, trauma-informed perspective. She aims to create wellness and balance through the integration of traditional counseling and mindfulness techniques. This approach has developed through her own journey of having an autoimmune condition, trauma, and anxiety.

She offers practices and discussions that can guide us to live a more fulfilled and authentic experience with self-compassion. She believes strongly that trauma is a universal human experience that affects the body, mind, and spirit. She believes that addressing our suffering leads to a journey that is beautiful, and painful and ultimately reconstructs our fundamental meaning of compassion, humanity, and our place in the world.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I was inspired to start working in entrepreneurship for a variety of reasons. It initially started as a grief journey, my cat had passed away and I felt driven towards starting my own business at that time because grief has a way of shaking up your way of being in the world. I also started because I have been working in health care for many years and I believed that I could reach more people by creating courses and content that was accessible to everyone. In addition, my partner has always worked from himself and I was always seeking the kind of creativity and freedom that they had, which I did not have in a traditional job. I am happy to say that we now work together on many of my projects and it feeds my soul. I was one of those people who would have said that I would never have owned my own business or had any desire to do so!

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

I think having the courage to be able to step into my own business and use my own voice to spread healing in the world. In my careers in health care as well as teaching in university, I had many highlights, but none that I could totally say were of my own effort, passion, and intuition. Launching my first course last year "The Trauma Recovery Method" has brought immense healing for my own process and I hope others. I have realized that for every person I help and every project I complete, it is just as healing for myself as it may be for the people consuming it. I think the highlight in my career may also be this place where I feel self-love, self-acceptance, and confidence to share who I am in the world.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

I believe you are asking here if I had anyone to credit. In that case, I would say my dad. My dad has been ill his entire life and has faced many health and mental health challenges and he taught me to never give up, even if you have to retreat into yourself at times, that you can always make it through the dark nights of the soul that life brings to us. I would also say that without my own trauma history, I wouldn't have the unwavering belief that everyone deserves healing and that everyone can heal. About five years ago, I was diagnosed with an autoimmune condition as a result of my trauma history. This ended up being a huge gift, as I took stock of my life, I realized that I needed to heal my trauma, find self-love and follow my passions.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

I hope that women can hear and really integrate that healing is our birthright and that we all have an amazing gift to share with the world. I truly believe that the more that we heal ourselves the more we can shine our gifts and light in the world. I hope that women also realize that we have the amazing gift of intuition and that while this has been ostracized at times, it is our greatest gift. Through this intuition, we know how to heal. I would also like women to understand that trauma is a universal experience, that it is essentially part of our life story and it doesn't need to be scary.

I want women to know that the more we claim our stories the more we can heal and the more we can restore balance in our world by valuing the feminine. I also know that healing is a process and that when we come at it from a Feminine perspective there is an organic unfolding of every evolving healing versus the shame of not having arrived at the destination of healing.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"We are all just walking each other home." -Ram Dass

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

I love this question! This means to me that we are reclaiming the power of the feminine. This is by no means having power over people, but we live in a world where intuition, love, and sacred power exist. As a woman making Herstory, this means that I can claim and be proud of my story, reclaim the wounded parts of myself, and share that with the world. I also think that the more we make Herstory the less violence, inequality, and destruction in our world will be tolerated. As we make a small ripple of healing in the world, that ripples out to create collective healing.

I really hope that women learn to trust their vision and give themselves the permission to follow through on the action that it takes to achieve it.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

It's not about learning to juggle all of the stuff. It's about having less meaningless stuff to do. Except I said that it was my moment of genius.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

I feel like we are opening doors for a more fulfilled way of living for generations to come. It's clear that the industrial and corporate schedule way of living is not serving humans and families, we are getting back to working in flow with the rest, care, laughter, and relationships that humans need to truly live.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

My start in entrepreneurship was inspired by my desire to make a difference in the lives of others. As a physician and serial entrepreneur, I have experienced firsthand the power of positive, empowerment-driven leadership and the often-needed guidance and resources in the industries of entrepreneurship and healthcare, particularly for those who are just starting out. I realized that there was a gap in the market for providing mentorship and support to entrepreneurs, which led me to start my own business. I also discovered the need for more representation of women and minorities in business, which led me to create platforms to uplift and empower these groups. Overall, my inspiration for entrepreneurship came from my passion for helping others achieve their dreams and live their best lives.

Taylor Adams is a real estate investor and finance content creator based just outside of Boston, Massachusetts. Taylor started investing in real estate in 2018, almost by accident, and became hooked on the financial freedom it allowed! Since then she has left her W2 job, bought and sold 6 investment properties across the US, and built a investing portfolio of $3M. Now she is determined to teach others how they too can build generational wealth and achieve financial freedom through real estate!

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I wanted to have more control over my time and financial growth potential. Since I was young, I always dreamed of having my own business and being my own boss. That has transformed into being able to use my experience and expertise to help others be successful.

*Taylor
Adams*

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

Honestly, the highlight of my career was the day I recognized myself as an "entrepreneur". I had spent so many years dreaming it and living it, but it wasn't until one day I was driving to a client meeting that it really hit me and I finally felt like an entrepreneur. I had achieved the time freedom I so desperately wanted as well as created a business that had no income cap.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

I would contribute my success to the endless support of my husband as well as a constant focus on growing and expanding my mindset from one day to the next. Knowing that my mindset is a journey and not a destination that has helped me continue to grow as a business owner and individual.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

I want women to know that if I can do it, they absolutely can too. When I started, I had no plan, but now I want to pass on everything I have learned to help other women find financial freedom and build generational wealth!

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

You are worthy because you are.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

It means sharing my knowledge and experience with other women. I want EVERY woman to have the opportunities that I have had - to me this means teaching as many women as I possibly can how to invest in themselves and their futures, build generational wealth, and achieve financial freedom.

I'm a former gothic punk girl with a dragon tattoo who is now a Doc Marten-wearing spiritual badass. I'm an Intuitive Coach, divine channel, energy master, medium, and author. I love helping women who have lost themselves through business, trauma, or loss understand that they are not broken, but simply disconnected from who they truly are. I help them learn to let go of the past, discover who they are now, and embody the thriving being they have yet to become. In short, I help people fall in love with their souls so they can fall in love with their lives.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

When I learned reiki, I knew I wanted to use it to help people. There weren't (and still aren't) any jobs hiring reiki practitioners so I had to start my own business in order to do what I wanted to do. Not doing what I loved and not helping people wasn't an option.

Janet

But I had no idea what I was getting myself into! It's been an interesting and challenging experience but here I am - 12 years later - still doing it!

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

Just generally seeing my clients lives improve, one thought, one action at a time. I can't get enough of seeing my clients' lives change as they stop just surviving and start thriving and watching them be examples of love, success, and abundance to those around them.

If you could attribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be? Definitely my (adult) kids and my soulmate husband. They have been a huge and consistent source of strength and encouragement for me and have stood by me through so many ups and downs. They're all amazing at sharing unconditional love and support, whether they know it or not.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

I want them to know that even though they may feel disconnected or lonely, they're not broken. There is hope. Even if it's one small step at a time, they can feel whole again. That creating a life full of the love and success that they deserve is absolutely possible.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"Just f*cking do it" – Me. (It's direct, just like me.)

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

To me, that means that a woman is creating her own life story. She's following her Soul's journey, she's being supported by the Universe, and she is shining her magnificent light so that other women can be inspired to do the same.

Mandy Nicholson is on a mission to stomp all over the myth of the starving artist by helping these women build confidence and become the creative business leaders they were born to be.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I had a series of unfortunate events in 2009 that took me from my 6 figure corporate career to rock bottom, ending up as a bankrupt single um, with my 2 kids & 2 dogs living in social housing. I started my entrepreneurship journey because I didn't want to stay there & so I could be there for my kids.

Mandy Nicholson

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

In 2018 my late husband gave me a loving push toward my true passion and told me to stop talking about starting a creative business and just do it! I launched my creative business on boxing day 2019, hit 6 figures in 2020 despite the pandemic and my business keeps going from strength to strength. I am following my dream and working with my dream clients, a pretty good highlight.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

My late husband for believing in me for who I was at a soul level. He died in April 2020 2 months into the pandemic and his love and support stayed with me and gave me the courage to keep going.

She has appeared on numerous podcasts, speaking events, and publications to share her expertise on how to tap into the power of the subconscious mind for ultimate freedom, success, and fulfillment.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I always knew that I wanted to be the founder and CEO of something that would allow me to make a difference in this world and give me the freedom I was beginning to recognize I deserved. I also knew I wanted to help people who were struggling with addictions and mental unwellness, having witnessed my late husband who was a high-profile professional fight bipolar depression which led to alcoholism.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

I owe all of my success in helping others to two people: My late husband Rick, who taught me so much about strength, love, resilience and overcoming your past, and my friend and mentor, Marisa Peer, founder of Rapid Transformational Therapy® for her brilliant insight, talent, authenticity and generous inspiration.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

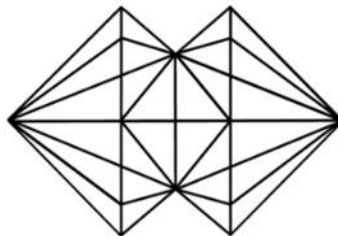

You are the CEO of you! Do what you don't want to do first - and when you feel that anxiety in your body, tell yourself you are excited, not afraid. Tell yourself you've got this! Our subconscious minds, which influence 97% of our feelings and actions, use the words we say to ourselves and our visualizations as a blueprint for our lives. Your thoughts create your feelings which create your actions. All you can control are your thoughts. Choose them boldly.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

You are far more powerful than you think. If you were a man, you wouldn't think twice about doing it. Hold your head high, give yourself what you've always deserved, and be a boss.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

I am deeply grateful for this opportunity. As women, our stories are the most important things we can share. You never know who will read your words and be inspired to turn the pain from their past into something so profoundly powerful to boost up others. No one can change their past, but you have all the power in the world to create your future.

Laila Martin calls Ibiza home. She loves beaches, hikes in nature, getting on a plane and exploring new cities, cooking and eating Asian food, yoga, and of course skincare.

Her interest in skincare and wellness has rapidly developed over the years and has enhanced her learning with Nutrition Courses, a Life Coaching Master-class, and Diploma in Holistic Facials.

These have all led her to focus on her role as the Skin Therapy Coach.

As someone who has struggled with inflammation issues over the years, both internal and external, her reasons and interest to explore more into the world of nutrition and skincare became a top priority.

She started by learning all the different aspects of caring for the skin. She wanted to help people who suffer from any skin problems or just needed guidance in their skincare routines, skin product ingredient awareness, diet and nutrition planning and general lifestyle to be comfortable and happy in their own skin.

*Laila
Martin*

Becoming a Skin Coach has enabled her passions, experience, and expertise to work together in helping people understand underlying everyday factors that may be contributing to skin problems. A holistic approach, enables them to gain the best understanding of their skin and is viable for it to maintain a lifestyle transformation.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I was working in the finance industry during covid when my role got dropped. I decided I needed to start up something online that I was actually passionate about, so I started doing courses and learning all about skincare and coaching.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The highlight of my career so far has been attending yoga retreats in Ibiza and Formentera to host skincare workshops and holistic facials with views of the ocean and surrounded by nature.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

My success would be down to being inspired by nature to help me with my creative ideas for new products. I love using ingredients from nature where possible.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

My aim is to get the message across about using natural skincare products, rather than the expensive, beautifully packaged ones from top brands that may contain many harmful ingredients. Many items that you may put in your smoothies may also be used on the skin so often a face mask can be made by looking in your kitchen cupboards.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

Just one small positive thought in the morning can change your whole day.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

A woman making herstory to me means that everyone can follow their passion and make a success out of an idea. It's great that so many women are becoming entrepreneurs and moving away from the 9-5 job of doing something you don't love.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I've always had an entrepreneurial spirit, watching my dad build his own business growing up. I always danced between the steady, stable, corporate journey and the entrepreneurial adventure. I grew up in Oklahoma and there was a terrible tornado in May 2013 I realized that life is so short and we need to go after our biggest dreams and deepest desires.

What has been the highlight of your career so far?

I have traveled the world speaking, teaching, and facilitating transformational events and retreats but the highlight was a project we did with a women's cooperative in Nicaragua. With our Soul Sparkle Seva initiative, we partnered with a non-profit to build ten homes for the women and to create financial stability with tools and skills so they could provide for themselves long-term.

Shelby St.clair has spent the last 10 years as an entrepreneur growing businesses from the ground up, building teams, and becoming a multiple six-figure earners before launching her coaching business in 2017. The Boss Lady agency was created with one big vision goal in mind: freedom.

As a spiritual healer, embodiment coach, a business consultant at The Boss Lady Agency, and the founder of Brunch with Babes. People come knocking down Shelby's door for many reasons, but primarily due to her experience and expertise in the duality between business, personal branding, emotional intelligence, and transformational healing. Her method is informed by her certifications in NLP, Hypnosis, Reiki, Chakra, and Sound Healing as a Trauma-Informed Life Coach blended with practical, energetic business strategy and systems. Whether it's through her private coaching, in-person events, group coaching containers, digital courses, or her podcast Behind The Boss Lady,

*Shelby

Shelby is the go-to coach for women looking to step into expansion, leadership, visibility, and soul-aligned authenticity in their work.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I started my journey in entrepreneurship right out of college in 2012 launching an online clothing boutique. I attended FIDM in Los Angeles for fashion design and visual communications while having been in the world of retail for 5 years working for multiple companies as well as interning for solo designers. I knew wholeheartedly that working for someone else wasn't the right fit for me. I had always been someone who thrived on my own routine without being told where I had to be and when and after watching my mother build a business of her own since I was in elementary school and seeing the many women in her circle build successful businesses, I figured it "couldn't be that hard" (haha).

I jumped all in with no idea what I was doing, no clear plan, and only a desire to build something great for myself. I took myself to Google and YouTube University learning everything from web design to social media marketing + everything in between along the way. I built my first business for 3 years hosting pop-up shops, runway shows, and styling for video and editorial shoots until the day came when I was burnt out from the industry and the model mentality.

I wanted to be doing something that made me feel good by being able to help others with more than what they were choosing to wear which led to me launching a vendor event company where I helped small local businesses get seen by way of local vendor events. I learned so much about other people's businesses, what they were doing, what was working, and where they needed help, and along the way found my way into my third business partnering with a direct sales company that helped families live cleaner, healthier lives.

For three years I continued to build this business becoming a top salesperson, traveling, speaking on stages, and building a team of 20 incredible leaders. In 2017 I found myself lost, going through a divorce, selling my house, leaving my business to my ex, and starting all over.

Over a 6 months period, I went through a deep dive of self-discovery and personal development, activating my true gifts, answering my calling, and stepping into my purpose as I launched The Boss Lady Agency to help women in business start and grow businesses of their own. Again I went all in. I learned the ins and outs of the coaching industry without any knowledge of what could actually come from it. There were many moments of fear, limiting beliefs, and crushing overwhelm that made me question if I could ever be the coach that women were looking for.

In 2019 at the height of my personal business and growth, I found myself in another moment of deep self-discovery going through the loss of my second husband while 6 months pregnant. Everything felt heavy, the questions loomed and again I went inward to discover what this next-level experience really meant for me. I knew that I could look at this great loss as the reason to give up or I could look at it as the reason to push even harder and that is exactly what I chose to do. I began to connect how deeply women needed healing work to move through trauma and I pivoted my entire business in a way that truly allowed me to fulfill every single thing I was sent to this earth to do.

Five years later and I am now a spiritual healer, embodiment coach, and business consultant at The Boss Lady Agency, podcast host, and the founder of Brunch with Babes. I bring the duality between business, personal branding, emotional intelligence, and transformational healing using NLP, Hypnosis, Reiki, Chakra, and Sound Healing as a Trauma-Informed Life Coach, I blend practical, energetic business strategy and systems for women who are looking to step into expansion, leadership, visibility, and soul aligned authenticity in their work.

I now get to live out the true reason I desired to step into entrepreneurship over a decade ago...to have the freedom to do what I want when I want, wherever I want while living a life full of peace knowing that I am doing exactly what I am meant to.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The highlight of my career has been seeing the dreams I had back in 2012 become my reality. To have the opportunity to truly help others, to build a business that I don't need a vacation from, to wake up each day in full gratitude and joy for the work I get to do all while building a beautiful community of women who are so supportive, loving and dedicated to their own journeys of self-discovery and personal healing.

When you step into the world of entrepreneurship, along the way you have so many moments where you question if you're crazy and wonder if your dreams are "too big", doubting yourself and your capabilities, comparing yourself to what looks like overnight success stories but when you finally get to a point where you allow yourself to look back and see all you have been through, where you have gotten and how much has come true for you it's a truly beautiful thing to witness.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

My daughter is the reason I am where I am today. Being pregnant with her while going through the loss of my husband, experiencing the intense ups and downs of grief, and knowing that she was entering into my life to be given a life filled with love and experiences it gave me the motivation to continue working hard on myself and my dreams, to not give up and to keep pursuing everything I have ever wanted no matter how hard things felt. Becoming a mother allowed me to see myself in a new light, to see myself as a guide for a new soul in my presence, to know that healing is the way to pave the path forward for me, for her, and for every single woman out there.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

When anyone steps into my space I hope that they feel seen, heard, and accepted for where they are and where they want to be. I hope that women can hear my story and see a part of themselves in it and know that they aren't alone and that even though things may feel hard, things may feel scary, things may seem like they will never work out, they absolutely will. The dream, the desire landed on their hearts for a reason and if there is anything I know it's that we don't have things come into our heart space just because, there is a divine purpose and it is our birthright to follow the path to bring that dream/desire to live.

Success is meant for each and every one of us. It looks different for each of us all while looking the same...ultimately the vision of success is to be able to live the life of your dreams filled with complete joy and gratitude. I hope that women see the importance of bringing the mind, body, and soul into their business, to focus on themselves first and foremost, and dedicate each and every day to loving who they are so that, that love can pour out into their work and shine outwards as they become able to attract the clients, the money, the success that they desire.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"If not this then something better"

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

It means that I am breaking generational chains, that I am paving the way for women to do business from a heartfelt space, it means that women can stand in their power, align with their soul's calling and shine their light as they connect to the highest version of themselves and then become HER. Become another woman who is making Herstory.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

To be honest Cruella Deville lol I loved how fabulous and unapologetic she was, fearless and innovative. I turned to my mom and was like I wanna be like her when I grow up. Even now I have to tap into my Cruella to push through things.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

I have had so many it's hard to pick one, the impact that people express that I've had on them, their success, and their ability to dream have been overwhelming. One of my favorite highlights is when Joelle Garguilo came out to do my piece for New York Live on NBC and goes Everyone needs a Cloé in their corner. Later that day she sends me a screenshot that says can you connect me with Cloé I need her in my Corner. It was from the amazing Jacque Reid, someone I watched on BET news, NBC, etc, and was a model of a beautiful, elegant, black woman. I was in shock today she is a very close friend that I love and adore. I think the short answer is my highlight is the amazing relationships that I am able to foster and bring together. Having me in your Corner means having Everyone that's in mine and that's something to be very proud and grateful for.

If you could tribute your success to any one in your life who would it be?

There is no one answer for that lol. My mom gave me red bull wings to fly, my husband offered me the sky, my other mom (cause she ain't no stepmama) prepared me with the equipment I need to stabilize, my dad makes sure I fly with care and caution, and last but not least My fairy Godmother's my girls the sisterhood they have blessed me with is the strength, assistance, and love I need to move forward every day.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

A few messages are

1. There is no such thing as self-made your community and network are crucial
2. Your capabilities can go as far as your imagination
3. Don't confuse the process with the outcome (a success command from my upcoming book)

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

You can't have million-dollar goals, with thousand-dollar skills and hundred dollar work ethic .

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

It is such an amazing journey being a supported woman creating Herstory for all those who are watching and all those to come. As a married woman, mother, and sibling I'm able to be all those things and still be me, the businesswoman, community leader, and innovator .

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

As a woman in business, I've always been passionate about helping others overcome the confidence barriers that hold them back from starting their own businesses. My own experience of starting my own business and the struggles I encountered along the way inspired me to want to help others navigate the same path.

I started my own business after realizing that there were not many opportunities for me in my field and that I had to create my own. I had to learn everything from scratch, from how to create a business plan to how to market my services and products. I also had to learn how to overcome my own self-doubt and lack of confidence. The journey was not easy, but it was fulfilling and taught me a lot about myself and what I am capable of.

It was through this experience that I realized the importance of having a support system and access to resources and mentorship for individuals starting their own business. I realized that many people face similar challenges and barriers, and I wanted to help them overcome those obstacles and succeed in their entrepreneurial journey.

That's why I started my own coaching business to provide the support, resources, and mentorship that I wish I had when I was starting my own business. I'm passionate about helping others turn their business dreams into reality, and I find great fulfillment in being able to make a positive impact on their lives.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The highlight of my career thus far has been seeing the success and growth of the individuals and businesses that I have had the privilege to support and mentor. There is nothing more satisfying than seeing someone go from an idea to a successful business owner, and knowing that I played a small part in that journey.

One specific moment that stands out for me was when one of my mentee's reached out to me after successfully securing funding for their business. They thanked me for the guidance and support I had provided them, and it was at that moment that I realized the impact that I was having on people's lives.

Another highlight of my career has been the community building aspect of my work. I have been able to connect with many inspiring individuals and create a supportive community of like-minded individuals who share a passion for entrepreneurship.

Overall, the highlight of my career has been the opportunity to make a positive impact on the lives of others and to help individuals turn their business dreams into reality. It is incredibly rewarding to be able to help others achieve success and to see the positive impact that it has on their lives.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

If I had to attribute my success to any one person in my life, it would be my mentor. They believed in me and my abilities when I didn't believe in myself, and they provided me with guidance, resources, and support when I needed it the most. Their mentorship and support were instrumental in helping me navigate the challenges of starting and growing my own business, and they played a vital role in my personal and professional development.

My mentor not only provided me with the knowledge and skills I needed to succeed in my business, but they also instilled in me the confidence and belief in myself that I needed to overcome the obstacles I faced. They were always there to listen and provide guidance, and their unwavering support and encouragement gave me the strength to keep going when things got tough.

I am forever grateful for the impact that my mentor has had on my life, and I wouldn't be where I am today without their guidance and support. Their mentorship has been invaluable and I am honoured to have had the opportunity to learn from them.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

The message that I hope women take away from my platform is that they are capable of achieving their business dreams, regardless of their background or circumstances. I want women to know that starting a business is not easy, but it is possible and with the right support, resources, and mindset, they can succeed.

I want to empower women to believe in themselves and their abilities, and to understand that they are not alone in their journey. I want to provide them with the tools and resources they need to overcome their fears and doubts, and to help them navigate the challenges of starting and growing their own businesses.

I also hope to promote the importance of community and connection, and to show women that by supporting and lifting each other up, we can all achieve greater success. I want women to understand the importance of having a support system and a network of like-minded individuals to turn to for guidance and encouragement.

Overall, my goal is to empower women to take control of their lives and their careers, to believe in themselves and their abilities, and to know that they are capable of achieving their business dreams. I hope that through my platform, I can help women to build the confidence and skills they need to succeed in their entrepreneurial journey.

What is your go to quote for motivation?

My go-to quote for motivation is "If you want something you've never had, you must be willing to do something you've never done." This quote reminds me that in order to achieve something new, I need to be willing to step outside of my comfort zone and take risks. It reminds me that success often comes from taking bold steps and making bold moves, and that in order to grow and achieve new things, I need to be willing to try new things and make mistakes along the way.

This quote also reminds me that success is not guaranteed, but it is possible with the right mindset and the willingness to put in the work. It reminds me that achieving my goals requires persistence and hard work, and that I should never give up on my dreams.

Overall, this quote serves as a reminder to push myself to be better, to challenge myself and to strive for success, even in the face of uncertainty and fear. It helps me to focus on the bigger picture and to stay motivated when things get tough.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

Being a woman making herstory means different things to me and to different women. However, generally speaking, it means taking an active role in shaping one's own destiny and making a meaningful impact in one's own way. It means breaking barriers, challenging stereotypes, and defying expectations to pave the way for future generations of women.

For some women, making herstory means achieving success in a traditionally male-dominated field, or being the first woman to hold a certain position or title. For others, it means starting their own business, creating a new product, or inventing something revolutionary.

For some women, making herstory means fighting for social and political change, whether through activism, advocacy, or running for public office. For others, it means creating art, music, or literature that reflects their own unique perspective and experiences.

Making herstory also means challenging the status quo, pushing boundaries and creating new opportunities for women and girls. It's about breaking the mould and being true to oneself, and showing other women that it's possible to achieve their own goals and aspirations.

Finally, to me, being a woman making herstory is about being a role model, and it means being a leader, and an inspiration for other women to follow. It's about showing that it's possible to achieve one's own dreams, and that with hard work, determination and perseverance, anything is possible.

Brittney Ellington is the founder and Executive Director of The Crow HEAL Project, Inc. (TCHP). TCHP is an arts driven NYC based nonprofit organization, missioned to increase public awareness of Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) and promote trauma-informed approaches across NYC. Brittney is a trauma survivor who has experienced the impact of ACEs firsthand. She believes that NYC is far behind in the trauma-informed space and so The Crow HEAL Project was born to bridge that gap.

She is on a mission to break barriers in her community in Crown Heights, Brooklyn to meet New Yorkers where they are to bring awareness, prevention, and action through the arts to reduce ACEs and MAKE AMERICA TRAUMA-INFORMED. In addition to running a nonprofit, she owns multiple businesses including a real estate investing, travel and trauma recovery coaching business. She's also a cloud engineer at Amazon Web Services, rapper & ghostwriter, and mom of 3 children.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

My start in entrepreneurship was inspired by spirituality. I had what I like to call a spiritual awakening last year. 2022 was absolutely the year of enlightenment for me. I think the pandemic was a reality check for every single one of us and for me, it sat me down, it forced me to reflect, it calmed me and calm was truly unfamiliar territory for me. Being out of my comfort zone like that led me to see so much about myself and just my life overall and what I saw, I just couldn't unsee it, I had found my purpose. I knew that my calling was not at anyone's tech company trying to keep up with everyone else there working around the clock. I needed to be out in the community being seen, heard, and advocating for real change using my lived and professional experience and so my nonprofit, The Crow HEAL Project was born.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The highlight thus far has been getting to know myself and stepping into my authenticity. Before I knew what my purpose was, I had some serious identity issues I wasn't aware of. I've worked multiple jobs in multiple fields and none of it ever truly resonated with me, I was just getting by. On this entrepreneurship journey, I have truly been learning more about who I am and what I've been called to do and it's honestly the most freeing feeling ever.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

My inner child. She really sacrificed in ways a child should never have to but in our culture, a lot of children do make sacrifices they aren't truly built to make. In a sense, I owe her everything and I would tribute my success to her.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

That it's never too late to live in your truth. Many of us don't find ourselves until later on in life and then we beat ourselves up for not figuring it out sooner. Then we allow our protective parts to overpower our thoughts and tell us that it's too late to live in your truth now, you have a family, you have a career, it's just too late, etc. You can absolutely step into your authentic self at any age whether it's 30, 60, or 80 and beyond, our parts are with us forever but allowing your authentic self to shine through and lead is so necessary. We get caught up in society's rules and now social media's rules and we put ourselves further in a slump. I hope women on my platform see that I chose to break the cycle and live in my truth regardless of how it makes me look in the end and hope that they feel compelled to take back their power too.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"It is never too late to be what you might have been." – George Eliot

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

It means a lot to be a cycle breaker. I always knew that there was something very different about me growing up. My level of resilience was just so intriguing to me. Being a woman making herstory is just the icing on the cake. I truly feel like there is nothing I can't do.

Railey Molinario, a renowned Love Educator & Relationship Coach, empowers individuals to live fulfilling lives through her teachings on relationship intelligence. With a remarkable journey from abandonment at birth to a six-figure boss, Railey has gained recognition and has been featured on prominent platforms such as the BBC, Peanut, Medium, and Sovereign magazine. As a respected leader in the industry, Railey provides the world with the skills and knowledge needed to cultivate thriving relationships and lives. Her signature program, the Power Couple PhD, utilizes her proven formula to guide couples to build long-lasting, thriving relationships.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

Post-pandemic, we're recovering from the effects of isolation and poor relationships. I became the world's first Love Educator as I, too, have suffered from a poor relationship with myself and others.

Railey Molinario,

As an infant, I was abandoned by my father and left to sleep in the snow. As a child, I experienced abuse and neglect by my mother and stepfather. Growing up not feeling loved left me in a critical self-sabotaging state. By 16, I left home to make it in the world on my own but soon came face to face with a suicide attempt, unable to bear it all. In that dark and cold hotel room, I asked myself, "Do I truly want to die or do I just want the suffering to end?".

Determined to live a more purposeful life, I learned to become all those things I hadn't yet been. I had no idea how to change my life, but I had an active imagination and nothing to lose.

Our ignorance of Love and relationship intelligence isn't our fault but rather the failure of society to well equipped us with the tools we need to thrive, leaving us disconnected and suffering.

I've realised how vital relationship intelligence is for our relationships and guiding our moral and societal well-being. My mission is to provide the world with the adequate tools and techniques that most lack so we may become a more empowered society equipped with understanding, compassion and connectedness.

I've gone from abandoned to 6 figures, leaving the world a little more joyful.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

The highlight of my career has been and will always be serving others. My team and I are part of a movement to end generational poverty, trauma, and ignorance through education and access to resources.

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

I would tribute my success to my husband, who supported me throughout my business journey. Being a power couple isn't only what I teach to others but what I have had the gift of experiencing, truly understanding the power of creating your dream life in a highly functional relationship.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

We can create the relationships and lives of our dreams by mastering the relationships with ourselves and others. I was able to go from abandoned at birth to a 6-figure boss, without paying for ads, simply by creating and maintaining thriving relationships with those around me.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"Finish each day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day. -Ralph Waldo Emerson

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

Being a woman making history means rising above the barriers set by those before me and being rewarded, despite the colour of my skin and sex, because of my expertise and willingness to serve others.

Jana is all about making exercise fun, simple and enjoyable (this is the only way we will stick to it long term).

Jana is a Tacfit certified Instructor, Strength & Conditioning coach, qualified personal trainer .

Jana empowers women over 50 with movement & exercise that helps them reconnect with their bodies, makes them strong, toned and powerful without a gym or lifting a single weight so they can confidently navigate ageing and menopause and live their lives in vibrant health, pain free and with the freedom to do what they desire.

Jana has years of experience training women from all walks of life. Her clients get strong, mobile and powerful using exercise and movement that is intuitive and suits their bodies, especially at this transitional stage of life.

Jana has discovered & mastered ancient warrior training with steel mace & clubbells and she now helps other women discover their inner warrior. She believes that every woman deserves to be strong, confident and invincible!

Jana a mother of three children and lives in the beautiful New Zealand. She loves all things outdoors and is a keen (but not always very good) surfer.

What inspired your start in entrepreneurship?

I felt like I never really fitted into the corporate culture. I worked at a prestigious private college where misogyny was rife. Women were routinely talked over in meetings, made fun of and were paid poorly. I also deeply resented having someone else pick my children up from school and always missing out on their special moments because I was at work. I was stressed, incredibly busy and deeply unhappy. I developed an autoimmune disorder as a result of the enormous stress I was under.

And one day after I was being asked to absorb my departing colleague's work with no extra remuneration, I quit on the spot.

I desired work where I still work hard but I am the one getting the recognition and all the money. I want my work to fit around my children and my lifestyle and I want to be there for all the important moments. So entrepreneurship was really the only option. I joke that I'm entirely unemployable. I love my business, I'm deeply passionate about what I do and I get to live my life to the fullest.

What has been the highlight of your career thus far?

It's difficult to narrow it down to just one. One of the highlights is receiving one of the most prestigious fitness certifications in the world, from TACFIT academy. I trained for 6 months for this and holding in my hand was the sweetest moment. And I get enormous highlights every time my clients achieve incredible things - like learning to surf at 50, being able to play football after years of injuries, run again and living without chronic pain. Those are the victorious days!

If you could tribute your success to anyone in your life who would it be?

I'm going to have to say me. I have worked incredibly hard for everything I have. I came from an abusive and very poor family and I had to do a lot of self-work to get where I'm now. I have three children, two girls and a son and I want to show them what a strong independent woman looks like. They are what drives me when I can no longer drive myself. They are also my biggest cheerleaders.

What message do you hope women take away from your platform?

That they can become unstoppable and live the life of their wildest dreams. Physical strength is deeply connected to mental strength, grit, confidence, resilience, self-worth and self-efficacy. And you can be strong without losing your femininity.

What is your go-to quote for motivation?

"It does not matter how slowly you go as long as you don't stop" Confucius - this can be applied to just about anything in life. Consistent small steps over long period of time yield the biggest results.

What does being a woman making Herstory mean to you?

I take it as an enormous privilege to be able to inspire women and to help them become stronger, more powerful and unstoppable. I want more women to know that being strong physically can help them through tough stuff. I want to give them hope that they can thrive as they are ageing and they don't have to live in pain. I truly believe I was put on this planet to do this work
